Americans waste millions of hours and billions of dollars a year on self-improvement plans and products that don't work. We try and fail to, among other things, lose weight, be a better marriage partner, a better parent, get fit, increase our work productivity or get out of debt and save for something important. We give up for a while and then - often around the New Year - we try another plan. We buy different products and we fail again, all the time losing ground while looking for answers in the wrong places. Whether we admit it or not, for most of us the main barrier to personal progress is ourselves. We know what we need to do, but we can't seem to make ourselves do it. Gumption is the power to do what needs to be done, when it needs to be done. Willpower flows from gumption, but gumption is much more than willpower. Gumption is courage, common sense and resourcefulness in harness together. These are attributes you can strengthen. When you increase your personal supply of gumption, you will be more, you will do better and you will have the power to live the life you want to live. Gumptionade will show you how.

This research collection presents a critical review of the materials used for learning English around the world. The first section includes a discussion of materials for specific learners and purposes, such as young learners, self-study, academic writing and general proficiency. The second section presents a detailed study of the materials used in Europe, Asia, North America, South America, Africa and Australia, and critically evaluates their effectiveness in the teaching of English to speakers of other languages. Taking both the teacher's and the learner's needs into consideration, the book makes a positive contribution to the future of research in materials development, and has practical applications. This comprehensive, critical analysis of materials in use around the world will be useful for academics researching materials development and applied linguistics and for students on post-graduate applied linguistics and ELT courses.
