In 1909, the Chino Mine becomes the the first site for "open-pit" mining under the Chino Copper Company. The railroad arrives in Santa Rita* in 1898, allowing for massive amounts of copper to be transported. In 1905, John M. Sully determines that the many tunnel mines riddling the region are all accessing a single, massive copper body. The time is right for Daniel C. This was a company town in the truest sense of the word. By the 1950s, the Kennecott Copper Corporation was the owner of both the mine and Santa Rita itself. Mining operations had become so large scale that the pit surrounded the town. Santa Rita had to go. Now there is only empty air where the town used to be.

Copper mining in the area began late in the Spanish colonial period, but it was not until 1803 that Francisco Manuel Elguea, a Chihuahua banker and businessman, founded the town of Santa Rita. He named it Santa Rita del Cobre (Saint Rita of the Copper), after Saint Rita of Cascia and the existing mine. During the early 19th century the mine produced over 6 million pounds of copper annually. The crudely smeltered ore was shipped to Chihuahua for further smelting and then sent to Mexico City ...
