'Cross-border' means that it either concerns an arrangement where one EU member state is concerned or where an EU member state and a third country are involved and at least one of the following conditions is met: Not all of the participants in the arrangement are resident for tax purposes in the same jurisdiction

Reportable cross-border arrangements (DAC6)

As different tax jurisdictions will have differing tax rates and laws, such a structure could use cross border arrangements to gain a tax advantage. The simplest way to do this is for a company in a low tax jurisdiction to charge a group company in a high tax jurisdiction a higher than normal price for the goods or services that it provides. This shifts group profits from the high tax company to the low tax company, saving tax, and is known as Transfer Pricing.
