Living with a tigress is no joke! This is the true story of a Forest Conservator who risked his life and went beyond the call of duty for Khairi, a tigress he considered as his very own. The book offers the perfect balance of a biography and a scientific study. Khairi is so brilliantly brought to life in this book that you almost expect to hear her padding up behind your chair, purring loudly.

Quality Assessment in High Schools: Accounts From Teachers, edited by Anne Davies, Sandra Herbst, and Kathy Busick, offers techniques and firsthand strategies for creating systems of assessment that target high school students' needs and engage them in the learning process. Chapters are authored by educators in a variety of disciplines, including English, mathematics, social studies, science, alternative education, world languages, philosophy, and humanities. These educators share practical examples from their own practice to help readers increase the efficacy of their assessment practices and motivate students to take ownership of their learning. This resource is divided into three parts. Part one prepares teachers for learning, teaching, and assessment. Part two shows educators how to engage students using assessment. Finally, part three prepares educators to evaluate and report assessment.

America's leading civility expert knocks household discourteousness off its foundations. As the rudeness rampant in America's streets sends its citizens fleeing inside to bolt the doors and draw the shades, they are finding what was once the relative safety of the hearth threatened by an unwelcome addition to their living space--the same rudeness presumably left behind when they stepped across their own cozy thresholds. With the keen wit and insight that distinguishes her column and previous books, Judith Martin's newest work equips residences everywhere with the tools to return manners to domestic life. Refusing to recognize that the harried household cannot meet her standards of propriety--especially since all households are now harried--Miss Manners explains how this is done. Whether your family is nuclear, blended, extended, or unrelated; whether you are single, divorced, living together, or married; at a family dinner or dinner party; engaged in combat with the neighbors or with the relatives--there is simply no substitute for the core of civility that must reside at the heart of every house, condo or apartment if it is truly to be a home. Miss Manners is prepared to sweep through your house and get rid of those lurking traces of rudeness that you were pretending not to notice. You know you are not going to be able to enjoy a pleasant and peaceful household until these few chores are done. Table of Contents Chapter One--The People Allotting due space and respect to parents, children, roommates, relatives--and whoever those other people are whom one of them must have brought home Chapter Two--The Place Making use of the rooms instead of turning them into a mess or a museum, while everybody huddles upstairs Chapter Three--The Rules Negotiating compromises without having to leave home for Domestic Dispute Court Chapter Four--The System Keeping track of where everybody is, where they are supposed to be, and what they are supposed to be doing (if they remember) Chapter Five--The Help Getting the housework done when you can't complain about the Servant Problem--because theservants are you and the people in the phone book who may be there sometime today Chapter Six--The Visitors Offering hospitality without surrendering your privacy or your resources to the thankless Chapter Seven--Entertaining: The Social Contract Reviving the art of not-for-profit entertaining to make friends who will love you for yourself Chapter Eight--Entertaining: The Social Event Learning to give a variety of parties, formal and informal--because it beats staying home alone watching TV Chapter Nine--Entertaining: The Relatives Kindling warm memories rather than heated conflict at family occasions Chapter Ten--The Community Being pleasant enough to the neighbors so you're not afraid to walk out your own front door
