The elders of Israel and the Constitution by Jerome Horowitz

Question: "Who were the seventy elders of Israel?" Answer: Elders in the Old Testament were men chosen to lead because of their wisdom, leadership abilities, and proven integrity. Israel had elders even before God delivered the nation from Egyptian slavery, but we don't know how many there were. God sent Moses to appeal to those elders for support before he went to Pharaoh (Exodus 3:16).

Who were the seventy elders of Israel? | GotQuestions.org

Answer: In ancient societies, the elders were the adult men, usually older, who were responsible for making decisions in a local village or community. While the term elder could simply refer to someone older (as in Genesis 10:21), most often, a reference to "elders" was an allusion to the men who led in local decision-making.
